24th REPORT BY THE CHAIR OF THE OSCE PA AD HOC COMMITTEE ON COUNTERING TERRORISM

To the OSCE PA STANDING COMMITTEE

Istanbul, 17 November 2025

Dear Mr President,

Dear Secretary General,

Distinguished Colleagues,

It is my honour to present the twenty-fourth report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Countering Terrorism, covering the period from our Annual Session in Porto last July to this Autumn Meeting in Istanbul.

Building on the foundation established earlier this year, the Committee has pursued a dual agenda: 1) exploring emerging trends, and 2) promoting the OSCE PA counter-terrorism acquis through targeted initiatives addressing, in particular, the misuse of new technologies and the prevention of youth radicalization.

The Porto Session marked an important milestone with the unanimous adoption of our Resolution on Preventing Youth Radicalization through Education and Media and Information Literacy. Since then, we have worked to translate that commitment into practice while broadening co-operation with international partners.

According to Europol's 2025 Terrorism Situation and Trend Report, numerous planned lone-actor and small-cell attacks in Europe were foiled, many of them inspired or facilitated online. The report highlights how extremist actors increasingly exploit AI-enabled propaganda, synthetic media, encrypted and decentralised platforms, complicating detection.

The growing convergence between organized crime and terrorism - particularly through cyber-enabled financing, arms trafficking, and illicit trade - continues to pose a major security threat. Equally concerning is the rise of nihilistic extremism: violence detached from coherent ideology, driven instead by alienation and the online amplification of anger.

Meanwhile, technological innovation continues to outpace legislation. The rise of AI-generated propaganda, deepfakes, and synthetic media is transforming the information landscape, eroding public trust and amplifying extremist narratives in an increasingly unregulated digital space.

These dynamics confirm that counter-terrorism today is inseparable from digital governance, youth protection, and technology ethics, an approach our Assembly has championed since Bucharest 2024.

In this spirit, the Committee has advanced several initiatives.

On 7–8 October, with four members, I participated in the United Nations Global Parliamentary Conference on Counter-Terrorism and the Prevention of Violent Extremism, held in Istanbul. The event gathered over 100 parliamentary representatives and experts and contributed to the 2026 review of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy.

Debates centred on AI misuse, the terrorism–organized crime nexus, oversight frameworks, and terrorism in conflict-affected areas. The Committee shared the OSCE PA's experience in promoting rights-compliant, technology-aware approaches and in advancing parliamentary engagement in the UN Strategy Review.

We have also continued close co-operation with the United Nations Office of Counter-Terrorism (UNOCT) and the Parliamentary Assembly of the Mediterranean (PAM) to advance the implementation of our resolutions. In parallel, we have strengthened ties with the European Union and the Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU). Earlier this month, Senior Advisor Marco Bonabello met with EU stakeholders in Brussels to explore prospects for an official visit in 2026, while CCT member Jevrosima Pejović held discussions with the IPU to further align our agendas.

The 22nd meeting of the Committee here in Istanbul reflects this momentum. This afternoon, we will hear from Turkish experts on their evolving threat landscape and multi-layered national strategy.

Later this month, on 25–26 November, our Assembly will join the Eighth Meeting of the UN Coordination Mechanism of Parliamentary Assemblies on Counter-Terrorism, hosted by the House of Representatives of Cyprus. Our interventions will highlight the OSCE PA's leadership in integrating AI governance, education, and rights-based prevention.

The CCT will soon launch the OSCE PA School Dialogues on Preventing Youth Radicalization, inspired by the Porto Resolution. The initiative brings parliamentarians into secondary schools to engage students, teachers, and local authorities on how civic awareness can counter extremist narratives.

Through interactive sessions, students will discuss misinformation, digital responsibility, and democratic participation, presenting recommendations for policymakers. The first edition will take place on 27 November 2025 in Pordenone, Italy, led by Vice-Chair Emanuele Loperfido with more than 100 students from the Don Bosco School.

Importantly, the programme is strictly educational and non-partisan, conducted in close co-operation with education authorities to strengthen understanding of democratic institutions and civic engagement, in line with relevant commitments to youth empowerment.

Members wishing to support this initiative are encouraged to host similar events in their constituencies under the OSCE PA flag. We would then collate all students' recommendations which should inform our future deliberations.

Finally, on 12 December 2025 our staff will take part in the yearly OSCE Counter-terrorism Focal Points Meeting, engaging in programmatic planning and co-ordination with the OSCE executive structures.

Looking to 2026, the Committee will concentrate on three strategic priorities:

1. Ethical AI use in security contexts – promoting transparency, accountability, and human-rights compliance in algorithmic tools.
2. Education and resilience-building – scaling up youth-oriented digital and media-literacy programmes with UNICEF and OSCE executive structures.
3. The crime–terror nexus – enhancing efforts to address illicit financing, trafficking, and online exploitation.

We will continue working with the Special Representatives on AOrganized Crime, Youth and Artificial Intelligence to align these priorities with the Assembly's broader frameworks.

Mr. President,

The months since Porto confirm that early, rights-based, and technology-aware prevention must remain central to our shared counter-terrorism effort.

I thank you, Mr President, for your continued trust; our Secretary General and his team for their support; and all Committee members for their dedication.

Together, we shall defend both our citizens' security and our shared democratic values.

OSCE PA School Dialogues
on Preventing Youth Radicalization to Violent Extremism

CONCEPT NOTE

Marco Bonabello - 17 November 2025

Introduction & Rationale

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly's 2025 Resolution on Preventing Youth Radicalization[1] highlights the role of education in building critical thinking, civic responsibility, and resilience to extremist narratives. It calls for integrating civic and media literacy into curricula and for parliamentarians to engage closely with their communities.

To translate this into action, members of the OSCE PA Ad Hoc Committee on Countering Terrorism (CCT) plan to organize public dialogues in middle-high schools across their constituencies.[2] These events will connect students, municipal leaders and civil society in an open exchange on the role of education in preventing the risks stemming from violent extremism, while also producing youth-driven recommendations for policymakers.

Objectives

- Empower youth with critical thinking skills to resist extremist narratives.
- Provide a platform for students to share perspectives and propose solutions.
- Strengthen community engagement with municipal leaders and civil society.
- Equip parliamentarians with youth insights for policy advocacy.

Key Elements

- School Dialogues: interested members host debates and discussions with schools on radicalization, misinformation, and cohesion.
- Community Participation: Municipal authorities, civil society, and local leaders contribute perspectives and expertise.
- Parliamentary Linkage: Parliamentarians share insights from OSCE PA resolutions and collect student recommendations for national and international policymaking.

[1] This resolution was adopted by the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly at the 32nd Annual Session (Porto, 29 June to 3 July 2025) as a part of the Porto Declaration and Resolutions.

[2] These dialogues are strictly educational and non-partisan, conducted in partnership with education authorities to strengthen students' understanding of democratic institutions, critical thinking, and media literacy, in line with OSCE commitments to civic education and youth engagement

Proposed Format[3]

Audience: Students (ages 14–18), teachers, local authorities, community leaders
Duration: 1.5 hours
Sample Agenda:
1. Welcome & Introduction (10 min)
   School Principal, Mayor/municipal authority, and CCT member frame the dialogue.
2. Expert Input, or Student Presentations (15 min)
   Local experts (or student teams) present perspectives on chosen topics.
3. Interactive Workshop and Student Panel Feedback (45 min)
   Small groups brainstorm local solutions and present findings to the audience.
4. Debate (20 min)
   School authorities and civil society experts discuss student proposals.
5. Closing (5 min)
   School Principal summarizes takeaways.

Potential Partners

International: UNICEF, UNESCO, OSCE PA Network of Young Parliamentarians
Civil Society: Local NGOs, community groups, youth organizations
Education & Faith: Schools, teacher associations, faith-based organizations

Examples of Actionable Recommendations

From Parliamentarians:
- Advocate integration of civic and media literacy into curricula.
- Promote school–tech company partnerships on digital safety.
- Support student-led campaigns and mentoring initiatives.
- Hold hearings with students and create cross-party working groups.

From Students:
- Launch a national "Media Literacy Week."
- Fund youth-led social media campaigns countering extremist narratives.
- Provide teacher training to detect early signs of radicalization.
- Create community forums for regular youth–authority dialogue.

Expected Impact

- Short-term: Greater awareness among students and teachers; stronger school–community ties; concrete youth recommendations.
- Long-term: Mainstreamed civic and media literacy in curricula; more resilient communities; institutionalized youth input into national policy.

Next Steps (2025 →2026)

1. Interested members identify 1-2 schools in their constituency.
2. Members partner with school & local authorities to co-host events.
3. Members commit to advancing student recommendation in parliament and share outcomes with the CCT for scaling across participating States.

[3] Note on Flexibility: this concept note provides a general framework for organizing School Dialogues. The specific format, focus, and structure of each debate should be determined jointly by the participating members and schools, taking into account local programmes, needs, interests, and priorities.

ANNEX

Potential Topics for Dialogues

The following topics illustrate possible entry points for discussions. Final choices should be tailored by each member and school according to local needs and interests.

1. Building Resilience Against Extremist and Violent Narratives
   Radicalization often starts with exposure to narratives that normalize or glorify violence, whether linked to extremist ideologies, hate groups, or political movements. Dialogues can explore how such messages spread, why they may attract young people, and their risks for democracy. Students and teachers can discuss tolerance, non-violent conflict resolution, and inclusive dialogue, identifying practical steps schools and communities can take to reduce vulnerability.

2. Online Misinformation and Algorithmic Bias
   Digital platforms are key channels for extremist content. Discussions can address how misinformation spreads, how algorithms amplify harmful material, and the impact on youth radicalization. Students can reflect on their online habits, consider tech companies' responsibilities, and propose initiatives for safer digital engagement, building awareness of how online systems shape opinions and risks.

3. Civic Education and Media Literacy
   Civic and media literacy help young people resist extremist narratives. Dialogues can focus on equipping students with critical thinking, source evaluation, and understanding of democratic values. Real-life cases of misinformation can be used to train recognition and rejection of manipulative content. This directly supports the OSCE PA resolution's call for integrating civic and media literacy into curricula.
